1 Who are we?

“We”, “our”, “us” is the company Arxus NV, a commercial organization that offers cloud services to business customers. Our company information:

Official Address	Veldkant 35D, 2550 Kontich, Belgium
Head Office Address	Prins Boudewijnlaan 24A, 2550 Kontich Belgium
Enterprise number	BE 0806.065.149
Telephone	+32 3 451 36 42
Website	www.arxus.eu

We also transact under the commercial brand name « Lume ».

2 Our role within the GDPR

Under the GDPR legislation, Arxus can act in 2 ways:

2.1 Controller

As controller for personal information, we collect and process regarding:

- The use of our website: www.arxus.eu.
- The use of our portal: portal.arxus.eu.
- The selling, operating and invoicing of those services.

Arxus is also controller for the personal information of our employees, but this is covered by a separate Privacy Policy for staff.

2.2 Processor

As processor for the personal information which resides in your applications and systems. You, as a customer, are controller of that personal information of your customers or employees.

Arxus does not conduct business with private individuals, always in context of a business; therefore “you” can refer to as:

- an employee or freelancer operating for a customer that subscribes to our services.
- an owner of a company that subscribes to our services.
- a stakeholder working for a customer that subscribes to our services.

3 List of Definitions

3.1 GDPR

The "General Data Protection Regulation" is the privacy standard established by the European Union that we must adhere to.

3.2 Personal information

Personal information (or personal data) means any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person. An identifiable natural person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, an online identifier or to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that natural person.

3.3 Processing

Processing means any operation or set of operations which is performed on personal data or on sets of personal data, whether or not by automated means, such as collection, recording, organization, structuring, storage, adaptation or alteration, retrieval, consultation, use, disclosure by transmission, dissemination or otherwise making available, alignment or combination, restriction, erasure or destruction.

Example of processes we use are purchasing new products/services, creating support cases, creating invoicing, ...

3.4 Commercial contact

During pre-sales and later during execution of your contract, we keep a list of contacts of your company. Those contacts can be assigned one or more specific roles. The "Commercial Contact" role is assigned to someone who has commercial decision-making authority within your company. This contact will be involved in all commercial quoting decisions. Usually this contact also has signing authority within your company.

3.5 Technical contact

During the execution of your contract, we keep a list of contacts of your company. Those contacts can be assigned one or more specific roles. The "Technical Contact" role is assigned to someone who will maintain, set-up, configure or service the purchased products or services within your company. This contact is also allowed to make requests towards our service desk and can be contacted by us for operational information.

3.6 Data Protection Officer

During the execution of your contract, we keep a list of contacts of your company. Those contacts can be assigned one or more specific roles. The "DPO" role is assigned to someone who acts as the DPO or privacy officer within your company. This contact shall be informed directly when data breaches occur on your environment. The DPO is also officially appointed by you in the DPA.

3.7 Security Incident Escalation contact

You can assign this role to a person within your organization that is responsible for managing sensitive (cyber) security related information. This makes sure this information is not shared with other contacts within your organization. This role is only applicable when you have subscribed to specific products/services within Arxus.

3.8 Watchlist contact

You can assign this role to a person in your organization who must always be informed on every ticket created with Arxus. For large companies, this makes sure all requests also pass by someone within your organization, regardless of who created them.

3.9 Case Agent

Our first-line colleagues, working on the Customer Operations teams, to assist when you raise cases for assistance.

4 Scope

4.1 General Scope

This privacy statement is applicable for our website (www.arxus.eu), our direct marketing activities, our lead/prospection, our Arxus Portal (portal.arxus.eu) and our general administration.

We share personal information with associated companies from the same association where we have an important controlling interest if this is required for the operation of your service. If we share personal information outside our association, this will be mentioned below.

4.2 Customer Scope

If you become a customer, a Data Protection Agreement (DPA) is available with the general outline of our Technical & Organizational Measures (TOM's) we implement to keep your information safe.

If there is additional personal information we process for specific products/services you subscribe to, the additional processing activities, stakeholders, types of data, retention times and processors are described in the Data Protection Addendum of the Service Description documentation. This information then supplements your existing Data Protection Agreement (DPA).

If there is no Service Description available, then the new processing activities are added separately as an addendum to your existing Data Protection Agreement.

5 Why and how do we process personal information?

We collect personal information for the purpose of our commercial goals: selling cloud services to business customers. Your personal information shall only be saved as long as necessary to complete a specific processing goal.

Arxus processes personal information on the following grounds:

- By using consent
- During the performance of a contract
- For compliance with a legal obligation
- For the purpose of legitimate interests

Below is a list of all processing activities in the following groups.

5.1 Marketing and prospection

For marketing and prospection, we organize our processing activities around advertising our products and services to existing and potential customers. This also includes discovering opportunities within our sales channels.

5.1.1 Based on consent

You can withdraw your consent at any time. This withdrawal has no retroactive action on the processing activities that were made before the withdrawal. This means that your consent will remain active for those processing activities, but you will not receive any more information in the future.

5.1.1.1 Responding to questions and follow up

We process this personal information to manage your request and contact you if required. We ask you not to disclose personal information in the open description fields. Also, if we contact you by telephone, we ask you not to disclose sensitive information other than the information we require to finish your request.

5.1.2 Based on legitimate interest

5.1.2.1 Customer acquisition

We are constantly prospecting new customers, searching for lead contacts and building relations with existing customers. Regarding these goals, we process your personal information (e.g.: to invite you for other ways of communication, to an event, ...). We also use LeadInfo who, if you visit our website, connect your IP-address to a company name, we use this to measure interest of that company into our products. We also purchase verified customer lists from companies who provide consent-based lists targeting a professional audience.

This processing is based on legitimate interest. You can object to this processing by enforcing your "Right to object", further described below in the chapter "Your rights and how to exercise them?"

5.2 Operation of your acquired services

Processing activities we execute to configure, support and monitor your purchased services and products.

5.2.1 Performance of a contract

5.2.1.1 Building an address book of your company

When your company buys (or intends to buy) services or products from us, we keep contact and identification information for at least 1 person. We can contact this person with any commercial, technical or privacy related questions or notifications regarding the purchased or subscribed services.

You could, however, add more contacts to the address book. This unique list creates an overview of all contacts and users (with access to the services and products) that communicate with Arxus about the following topics:

- Contractual decisions are for commercial contacts that have the authority to agree on the offers.
- Technical administrator access to grant access to the configuration and security of the services in vendor portals.
- Security Incident Escalation (e.g.: data breached) will be send directly to the CISO (depending on the service taken).
- Watchlist contact is automatically added to all cases (incidents/changes) informing them regarding all open issues.
- Data Protection Officer to inform whenever a data breach occurs of data subject request is being received.

You can manage this list (creating, managing, revoking users and assigning rights) yourself by using the Arxus Portal. By doing this, you create a list of 'Authorized users' that can contact us to schedule changes or report incidents.

We keep your language preference to send communication in your language.

Beware: Review your list with users on a recurring basis!

5.2.1.2 Using our Arxus Portal

Arxus Portal is the basis of our digital service channels in our ecosystem; when you subscribe to our services; the Arxus Portal will be available to you and where you can fully manage your products and services.

- First name, last name, email address to create a user account. And mobile phone number to create MFA security validation.
- We use the email address to send you notifications regarding the user account onboarding.
- If you are assigning the “Authorized User” role to a contact in your address book, that user can create and follow up cases.
- We keep your language so you can change the interfaces of the site to your preference.
- While working with the Arxus Portal, you can connect to our Knowledgebase system. This system will present helpful articles and “how to” step by step tasks so you can more easily complete complex ordering procedures.
- An AI chatbot is available on the portal to assist you with questions; this agent uses your activity history.
- You can escalate to one of our “Case Agents” for personal questions if the AI chatbot cannot assist you.
- You can see the identification, contract and personal information from your colleagues in the same company profile, this also comprises of sales orders that are available on the Arxus Portal.

5.4 Operation of our organization

For our staff, a specific privacy statement is applicable, always offered to them during onboarding and consultable on the internal network.

For applicants/visitors the following applies:

5.4.1 Based on consent

You can withdraw your consent at any time. This withdrawal has no retroactive action on the processing activities that were made before the withdrawal. This means that your consent will remain active for those processing activities, but you will not receive any more information in the future.

5.4.1.1 Participating in Online Meetings

To avoid unnecessary transfers for physical meetings, we organize online meetings where we can invite you to participate. During these meetings it's possible that the meeting is recorded and therefore your on-screen image, voice recording and content shared on the screen and in the chat is stored in our system. Participants will be informed using the Online Meeting Policy.

6 Sharing personal information with third parties

When you visit our website or (as a customer) use our products and services, it is possible that we provide your personal information to third parties, like partners (associated companies) and suppliers.

These third parties assist us in the development, delivery, execution or support of our products and services and to gain insights into how the services and products are used. The third-party providers offer such services as hosting, customer and technical support, marketing insights and campaigns, analysis, content delivery and/or payment services.

It is also a possibility that in the event of a reorganization, restructuring, merger, sale or other transfer of company assets, your data (including personal information) is shared with third parties. We only share this information to enable these third parties to execute their services or provide support.

The activities described in the previous chapter give an insight into the categories of personal information that are shared with third parties, other than the already associated companies.

If instructed by authorities, governmental institutions or other third parties with official requests, we could pass your personal information to comply with a legal obligation.

Finally, if any such case should arise, to protect your vital interest, we could pass on your personal information.

7 Transfer of your personal information outside the EEA

We strive to prevent the transfer of your personal information to third parties outside of the European Economic Area (EEA).

Whenever this is inevitable, we will make sure the transfer is compliant with the GDPR (by using an existing adequacy decision available for the specific country or implementing appropriate safeguards). If required, additional measures will be taken to have the same level of protection.

For the specific transfers, we refer to the chapter “Why and how do we process personal information?”.

8 For how long do we keep your personal information?

We only keep your personal information for our intended purposes (as described above) or if we are legally obligated to do. We refer to the chapter “Why and how do we process personal information?”.

9 Automated individual Decision-Making

The GDPR requires certain terms and conditions (and safeguards) when organizations use automated individual decision-making processes, like profiling, which could have legal consequences or other significant impact on the individual.

We do not use automated individual decision making.

10 Your rights and how to exercise them?

It's important for us that you keep control regarding the processing of your own personal information. Below is an overview of the rights you have and that you can exercise regarding that processing.

Depending on the processing or the lawfulness of the processing, some requirements or restrictions can be applied to the execution of those rights.

If you have a question or a complaint about the processing of your personal information or if you want to execute one of your rights, you can use one of the following channels:

- As a customer, you can log-in to the Arxus portal and create a case in which you describe your GDPR question. This is the fastest and preferred option as you will have authenticated and identified yourself using our system.
- You can also send an e-mail to dpo@arxus.eu or send a letter by post and direct it to

Postal Address	Arxus NV To the attention of the DPO Veldkant 35D B-2550 Kontich, Antwerp Belgium

We will also give additional information if there are more requirements regarding your request.

We try to response without undue delay, but certainly within one month after the reception of your request and verification of your identity. If we cannot respond within one month and we would like to extend this period or we will not continue with the execution of the request, we shall inform you about this.

10.1 Identity check

If we cannot verify your identity in the original request, we will ask you to provide us with more proof. This ensures that we will not provide your personal information to unauthorized individuals or delete your personal information unintentionally.

Below are the most important rights regarding the GDPR. We tried to make them transparent and easily readable.

10.2 Right of access to the personal information we process

If we process your personal information, you have the right to know. And if we do, you have the right to know which personal information and additional information regarding the processing as described in this privacy statement.

You have the right to receive a copy of the personal information that we process; on the condition it does not negatively impact on the rights and freedoms of others.

The first copy of the data is provided free of charge, but when we deem the request repeatedly excessive, we may charge a fee to cover for the administrative effort.

10.3 Right to rectification when personal information is wrong

If the personal information we keep is incomplete or wrong, you have the right to have it updated or, depending on the purpose of the processing, to have it completed.

Tip: You can always update your personal information using our Arxus Portal.

10.4 Right to restrict the processing

You have the right to restrict the processing of your personal information. Then, your personal information will only be processed by us and only for a specific purpose. You can exercise this right if one of the following situations arises:

- You contest the accuracy of the personal information during a period we need to verify the accuracy of the personal information.
- The processing of personal information is unlawful, but you oppose the erasure of personal information and request the restriction of the processing instead.
- We don't require your personal information for our described purposes anymore, but you require it for the establishment, exercise or defense of a legal claim; or,
- You object to a processing activity and requests us to restrict the processing pending the response on whether our legitimate grounds override your own.

Besides storing personal information, we can still process your data only but only:

- With your consent.
- To establish, exercise or defense of a legal claim.
- To protect the rights of a natural or legal person; or
- For reasons of important public interest.

Before we lift the restriction of processing on your personal information, we will inform you.

10.5 Right to data portability

When the processing of your personal information is based on consent or for the execution of a contract and the processing is done using automated means, you have the right to request a copy of your personal information in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format.

You also have the right to, whenever technically feasible, let us send (or transmit) your personal information directly to a third party.

However, this right is not applicable when it affects the rights and freedom of others.

10.6 Right to object

You have the right to object at any time to processing your personal information, on grounds relating to your specific situation, when the processing is based on the following legal grounds:

- processing is necessary for the performance of a task conducted in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in us;
- processing is necessary for the purposes of the legitimate interests pursued by us or by a third party.

Then we will not process your personal information anymore unless we demonstrate compelling legal grounds for the processing which override your interests, rights and freedom or for the establishment, exercise or defense of a legal claim.

When personal information is processed for:

- Direct marketing, regardless of whether it was the initial or further processing, you have the right to object at any time to the processing of personal information for such marketing, including profiling to the extent it is related to such direct marketing. When you object to processing for direct marketing purposes, we shall no longer process your personal information for this purpose.
- Scientific or historical research or statistical purposes, you have the right to object at any time to the processing of personal information unless the processing is necessary for the performance of a task conducted for reasons of public interest.

Remark regarding storing your objection:

If you withdraw your consent or if you object to the processing of your personal information, and this objection is accepted and executed, we will store your preference (and specific personal information to identify the objection) to prevent any possible re-occurrence.

10.7 Right to erasure (right to be forgotten)

You have the right to request the erasure of your personal information. This means we must delete your personal information without undue delay where one of the following situations applies:

- The personal information is no longer required for the purposes for which it was collected or otherwise processed.
- You withdraw your consent on which the processing is based and there of no other legal ground to process it.
- Your personal information is unlawfully processed.
- Your personal information must be deleted for compliance with a legal obligation regarding EU or Belgian law.

There are a few exceptions to the right to erasure to the extent that processing is necessary for:

- Exercising the right of freedom of expression and information.
- Reasons for public interest in public health.
- Archiving purposes in public interest, scientific or historical research purpose or statistical purposes.
- Compliance with a legal obligation which requires processing by EU or Belgian law; or,
- The establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims.

Remark regarding storing your erasure:

If your right to erasure is requested and this right is accepted and executed, we will store your preference (and specific personal information to identify the erasure) to prevent any possible re-occurrence.

10.8 Right to withdraw your consent

When you have given consent to process your personal information, you can withdraw that consent without motivation at any time and free of charge.

You can withdraw consent:

- by clicking “Preferences” or “Unsubscribe” in direct marketing e-mails.
- by e-mailing to marketing@arxus.eu and provide the marketing content you which to withdraw from.

The withdrawal of consent shall not affect the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal. You can start a right of access request.

10.9 Right to object against processing of your personal information using automated individual decision-making.

When your personal information is used for automated individual decision making and these produce legal effects or similar significant effects, you have the right not to be subjected to this processing.

However, this does not apply when:

- You have consented to this processing.
- The processing is required to enter or in execution of a contract.
- The processing is authorized by EU or Belgian law.

In the first 2 situations you have the right to request human intervention regarding the processing and to contest the decision.

11 Where can I get more information or file a complaint?

If you have a question or a complaint about the processing of your personal information or if you want to execute one of your rights, you can use one of the following channels:
